DISTRICT ATTORNEY BOOTH.

The appointment of H. E. Booth to be United States district attorney for Utah is exactly what might be expected of the Republican machine in this state. Indeed, a more typical selection of a representative of the party as it is today could hardly be made.

Mr. Booth's professional record is a matter of common knowledge and it certainly could not have been taken into account, either by the Utah delegation in recommending him or by the president in appointing. In public life he has been a commonplace supporter of commonplace machine men. Utterly without personal or professional distinction his sole claim of office is his association with the Smoot machine. Like his sponsors he could not hope for any important place within the gift of the people if he were compelled to submit his claims to a popular vote.

If federal office is supposed to be a medium of exchange for the payment of personal political debts, then Mr. Booth is entitled to the place. He is a slavish adherent of the machine, a willing promoter of a policy which has wrought immeasurable harm to the state. His confirmation is a distinct disappointment to every one who holds the office in high regard as a place which should be free from factional partisan influence; and it is an additional reason for the hope that the Republican machine will make its regime so distasteful to the people will repudiate it at the first opportunity.

Only one thing could achieve defeat for the party more surely, and that is the nomination of Glasemann of Ogden as postmaster, which seems likely to follow.

DEATH PENALTY IN KANSAS.

There are fifty murderers confined in the Kansas penitentiary awaiting execution. They were all found guilty at various times by juries and sentenced to die. But under the Kansas statute no murderer may be executed, no matter how heinous his offense, unless the governor signs the death warrant. No governor in very recent years has been willing to take this action. The result is that murderers have been accumulating in the prison.

They are likely to keep on accumulating, too, if Governor Hoch, who has been renominated by the Republican convention, is re-elected. Hoch has openly declared that he will not order any executions. This is the way he put the case in answer to a letter from a Kansan who wrote to ask why the criminals were not hanged:

"I shall not will that these men be put to death and furthermore, the present governor never will approve the hanging of any man. Do you suppose that if I had a man on the gallows with my hand on the lever ready to spring the trap I'd do it? Suppose I should say to that poor creature, 'Do you believe in the immortality of the soul?' and he should answer, 'Yes.' 'Do you believe in heaven and hell and that you will go to one or the other of these places?' and he should say 'I do,' do you suppose I would spring that trap and say 'Go to hell, then.' Indeed, I would not. What a beautiful spectacle it would be to see fifty men all in a row, hanged at the same time!"

It seems to us that Governor Hoch misses the point entirely. The question is not as to what sort of spectacle fifty men hanging in a row would make, but whether or not the law should be executed. It is not the business of a governor to say that this law should be carried into effect and that law ignored. His duty is to execute all laws with equal impartiality. It is not for him to decide between them.

Honest, or presumably honest, jurors have passed upon the guilt of the men now in confinement. It is probable that the Kansas supreme court has passed on a majority of the cases and found that the convictions were properly made. Now Kansas should either abolish the death penalty entirely or the governor should enforce it. There is no possible middle ground. This is neither the time nor the place to argue the wisdom or unwisdom of capital punishment. It is the law in Kansas and the governor's sworn duty is to enforce the law.

Hoch, by ordering the execution of the fifty prisoners, would no more be responsible for their death than the trial jurors, the judges of the district courts and the supreme justices. He would be no more responsible than governors, having the right to pardon or commute, who refuse to prevent legal executions.

FINE NEWSPAPER WORK.

It is not often that newspapers are entitled to congratulations for publishing inaccurate information, especially when they do it deliberately, but such an occasion has recently been presented. The newspapers of Philadelphia, without exception, published false and misleading reports of the Muth kidnapping case. Their readers were told that an Armenian was suspected, that the boy was with relatives safe and sound, and that there was really no alarm about him. The purpose of these reports was to throw the real kidnaper off his guard.

The Philadelphia police acted with commendable sagacity in the matter. They called in the newspaper men and frankly acquainted them with the progress of their investigation. The reporters and city editors were told that the police suspected and were trying to locate John J. Kean, the man who was subsequently located and arrested, with the boy in his possession. But the newspaper men were asked to refrain from printing the truth. The police went even further than that. They showed that if the real news was printed much harm might result and that the ends of justice might be helped if false information was given to the kidnaper through the newspapers.

The police were right and the newspaper men saw it. They deceived their readers, but at the same time they deceived the kidnaper. After Kean had been captured the director of public safety addressed a circular letter to the newspapers in which he gave them full credit for their work. To the efforts of the newspapers, the director said, and to their willingness to aid the police, the capture of Kean was undoubtedly due.

We are quite sure the newspapers of Philadelphia must be a mighty decent sort. And the police of Philadelphia are wiser than most of their kind. In most cities the police, when they do discover anything, are most strenuous in their efforts to keep it out of the newspapers. And it is quite true that newspaper men very often find out and publish that which the police are trying to conceal just to show the officers that they can find out. Often, too, the newspaper men know more about a case than the police and are able to give the latter valuable information.

As a rule the newspapers are just as much interested in securing the conviction and punishment of criminals as are officers of the law. Both are great forces for good and both should always work together for the common good.

WHAT THEY NEEDED.

Judge Kincaid of the Toledo, O., court of common pleas gave five ice men what may be described as their "needs." He fined them $5,000 and committed them to jail for one year each for engaging in a conspiracy in restraint of trade. It is presumed, from the meager reports at hand, that the ice men, all prominent citizens, agreed to raise the price of their product. The evidence must have been conclusive, for the court imposed the maximum penalty provided by the law under which they were tried.

At the same time, however, Judge Kincaid took part of the sting out of the sentence by announcing that if the defendants would make restitution the sentence might be mitigated. By restitution he probably means a retroactive restoration of the old prices. Nothing less would be restitution. And the ice men should not be let off without any penalty at all even if they do adopt Judge Kincaid's suggestion. On that principle any burglar could return his "swag" to its rightful owner and claim immunity from punishment.

The important thing is that the men were guilty of a crime under the Ohio statute. Because they were guilty of that crime, and a mighty mean sort of a crime it was, too, they should be punished. The most vicious of all combinations is a combination that preys upon the necessities of the public. In hot weather ice is not a luxury; it is a necessity. Without ice people become ill, children die. To raise prices because people are compelled to buy is to commit an offense that should be classed in the penal code as a felony, punishable by a long term in prison.

We congratulate Dr. T. B. Beatty, president of the state humane society, for his prompt action against the men who organized and were spectators at the dog fight last Saturday. The county prosecutors will be derelict in their duty if they fail to push the matter to a conviction of as many of these beasts as possible. Examples should be made of as many of them as can be caught.

The Democrats of a Kansas district have nominated a tariff reform Republican for congress. In view of the fact that most of the Republicans step quickly into line when the stand patters crack their whip it looks as if those Kansas Democrats were taking a long chance.

J. Ogden Armour says the packers haven't had a square deal. We cheerfully admit that they haven't. And they won't have a square deal until some of them begin doing time.

Really, Best Beloved, we haven't the least idea who the "Americans" are going to nominate for president of the United States. However, as you say, there's nothing the matter with Patriot J. Daly.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Francis S. Bassom and Mrs. E. B. Critchlow entertained about fifty women yesterday afternoon at the Bassom home to meet Mrs. Lester McLain, Jr., a national worker in Y. W. C. A. circles, who is at present helping to get the local work in good condition. The affair was thoroughly informal, the hostesses being assisted by a number of the women prominent in the local work. Mrs. Charles Plummer sang, and later Mrs. McLain gave a brief talk on the work in its various phases, and commended the local branch highly.

The marriage of Miss Maud A. Potter and Walter J. Meeks took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of only the immediate relatives. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Benjamin Young of the First Methodist church, and after a wedding supper for the family only, Mr. and Mrs. Meeks went to their new home on Fifth East street, where they will shortly be at home to their friends.

Miss Maud May Irvine was married yesterday afternoon to David C. Dunbar at the home of the bride's parents, only her brothers and sisters being present. The marriage service was read by Rev. Elmer J. Goshen, and following that a supper was served to the family. Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar will spend the honeymoon in the east and later will make their home in this city.

Mrs. William Druhl entertained again yesterday morning in an informal musical, her guests numbering about fifteen. Those who were present were Mrs. Oscar L. Cox, Miss Edith Gaby, Miss Emily Jessup, Mrs. George Wraggs and Miss Irma Watson.

Colonel and Mrs. Edwin F. Holmes will take a party of friends to Oakwood, the Fourth of July, and Mrs. Holmes will entertain at a luncheon on that day and also on the Saturday following.

Mrs. Harry C. Edwards has issued invitations for a card party to be given tomorrow afternoon at her home on North Main street.

Mrs. Reed Smoot, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. C. A. Eldredge, and her sisters for the past few days, has returned to her home in Provo.

Mrs. J. C. Wester of Pocatello is at home during her stay in town at 127 McClellan avenue.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Parsons, a former Salt Lake girl, and the daughter of Captain and Mrs. Elias Howard, took place today in the chapel at the National Soldiers' Home near Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor Badger are expected home today from their wedding trip, and they will be at home after their return at 429 Brigham street.

Mrs. Sarah E. Karkick and her four children will leave Saturday morning for their place at Brighton, where they will erect a new cottage.

Miss May Kervin entertains today at the Country club for Miss Mary Moore.

Mrs. S. C. Snyder will entertain at cards this afternoon at the Miller flats.

Mrs. J. R. Folsom gives a tea this afternoon for her aunt, Mrs. John Longmaid.

Mrs. G. M. Forbes gives the second in a series of teas tomorrow afternoon at her home on Twelfth East street.

Mrs. Thomas Kearns will leave tomorrow for the Kearns ranch in California.

Mrs. M. S. Woodward and her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Bidwell, will entertain at a bridge tea tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Clinton B. Leigh entertained a few of her close friends at an informal at home Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Martin and their son and daughter, all of San Francisco, will spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ira H. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Read will be back probably Sunday from their wedding trip, and will shortly be at home at 150 Thirtieth East street.

Mrs. R. J. Evans and her children are at the Cynthia apartments in Long Beach for the summer.

Colonel and Mrs. Edwin F. Holmes entertain this evening at a dinner at the Amelia palace.

Mrs. G. D. Snell gives a luncheon today for her sister, Miss May Price.

The marriage of Miss Florence Armstrong and Frank Bagley will take place this evening at 7:30 at the home of the bride's mother, on East First South street.

The marriage of Miss Fairy N. Davis and Arthur Gentry also takes place this evening.
